

BRETT RIPLEY

Summary

Creativity is the driving force for my ambitions as a web developer. I thrive in environments that demand innovative and progressive solutions to problems. As a creative entity I have always been a self motivator who feeds off of and contributes positive energy in project oriented environments. I pride myself on the ability to inhabit the mindsets and directions of a diverse group of content creators while still maintaining my own unique approach to problem solving.

Projects

Battleground

- Co-created a scalable infrastructure for spontaneous crowd gaming on mobile devices.
- Designed challenges utilizing the iPhone accelerometer and created scoring algorithms based on velocity data
- Implemented a beautiful and clean flex-box based layout for the app with careful attention to control and navigation placement
- We used Rails API and React Native for this application
- Constructed in six days with a team of three

DBCMDB

- Constructed a web app that emulates the functionality of a popular movie database
- Integrated Devise and OmniAuth to allow login via Facebook and Twitter
- Utilized AJAX to improve user experience with commenting on, reviewing, and voting on movies
- Utilized Bootstrap 4 to style the application
- Integrated other Javascript functionality for a more interactive client side
- This application was built in Rails
- Constructed in three days with a team of three

Salem Surgical Associates

- Small business website for a private surgical practice
- Built with HTML5
- Utilizes jQuery
- Styled with Bootstrap and custom CSS3
- Constructed in five days as a solo project

Beautiful and Meaningless

- Web app that allows users to choose an image category and twitter handle. A random selection is generated based on the user input, then mashed together in a full screen display.
- Built with Rails and React
- Styled with CSS3
- Utilizes the Twitter and Flickr APIs
- This was a solo project constructed in two days
